

IMPLEMENTATION

At The Vine Schools, our approach to history education is tailored to the unique setting of multiple schools. Our progressive History curriculum in Key Stage 1 focuses on honing essential historical inquiry skills. Children delve into the exploration of people, places, and events from the past, with a keen eye on relevance to their own lives. For instance, they investigate the evolution of toys over time, connecting to significant events like Remembrance and Guy Fawkes Night, which still resonate in British history.

Our meticulously structured curriculum accommodates mixed-age classes, ensuring that each child is taught at an appropriate level. Regular recaps of knowledge and prior learning contribute to a comprehensive understanding. The curriculum not only covers core aspects but also delves into the local area and its rich history.

While the challenge of teaching chronologically in mixed-age classes exists, our dedicated teachers prioritise instilling a sense of chronology in all history lessons. This emphasis allows children to establish connections and make comparisons between different periods studied.

We believe in fostering a hands-on approach to history, encouraging children to engage with the past through artefacts, photographs, eyewitness accounts, as well as visits from experts and trips to historical places of interest.

IMPACT

At The Vine Schools, our overarching goal is to mould every child into a historian, aligning with the National Curriculum's vision for them to depart with a cohesive knowledge and comprehension of both Britain and the broader global landscape. Our pupils progressively acquire historical knowledge and skills, developing a keen understanding of chronology and the realisation that concurrent events shape the world.

In addition to fostering the ability to link substantive historical concepts across various time periods, including comparisons and contrasts, we ensure that our students build a robust knowledge foundation. This foundation serves as a valuable asset for their future educational endeavours. Our carefully crafted curriculum encompasses British history, world history, and the history of their local surroundings, presented through meticulously planned units.

Central to our approach is a bespoke curriculum that enables students to explore history that holds relevance to their present lives and, significantly, to their future roles as adults. By establishing connections between subjects like English, Geography, and Computing, we empower children to showcase their historical skills in diverse areas of study.
